Animal rights group gallops into city feud

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Controversy over horses in Bay St. Louis — where they stay and what they do — has intensified in recent days.

Some were seen galloping in delight on the beach over the weekend. That did not escape the notice of city officials who said their appearance might be taken as a slap amid a feud over where the animals may be housed on a permanent basis.

Meanwhile, city officials are looking for evidence that the corralling of one pack of animals on a lot on Union Street constitutes a nuisance and poses a threat to public health.

And, animal rights activists are rallying to urge that the city outlaw any horse-drawn carriage business in town.

Last week, a judge extended a temporary restraining order that allow Ray Murphy to keep his horse stable at 300 Union Street, over the objections of some property owners nearby. City officials say a full hearing on the case has been set for Sept. 30. But before then, city leaders may go back into Chancery Court to argue that they have proof the stable is posing health problems in the area, and request immediate relief.

City Council went into a closed "executive session" on Tuesday night to discuss details of the litigation. Before that happened, however, council members heard a plea from the local representative of In Defense of Animals, Mary E. Hoffman. She urged council to outlaw the very horse-drawn carriage business that Murphy plans to establish from his Union Street base. He also wants to establish a riding academy.

Vandalism not taken lightly

BY ED LEPOMA

Bay St. Louis police aren't treating recent vandalism at St. Augustine Seminary lightly.

Police Chief Frank McNeil said it might be the work of a teen religious cult, and he plans to question some suspects.

In the latest incident, police were called Monday to the seminary after Father Michael Sucharski, S.V.D. noticed someone had entered the church. Outside the church, the Bishop's staff was ripped from the white statue of St. Augustine. Inside the church, votive candles were lighted and burnt matches thrown into basins holding holy water.

The first incident of vandalism occurred as early as June 7, but Sucharski said he didn't call anybody, because he didn't want to publicize the event for fear it would spark "copy cat incidents."

Sucharski said a statue of the Blessed Mother was knocked off its pedestal, and the head broke off as it crashed to the ground. Another statue of St. Bernadette was also knocked over, but survived the crash.

Drainage upgrade slowed

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Technical troubles with improving drainage facilities near CSX tracks in Bay St. Louis have slowed construction of a major drainage upgrade.

But Bay St. Louis City Council was told Tuesday that "very delicate negotiations" are necessary to make sure the project is done correctly. Acknowledging the project has taken much longer than officials had hoped, attorney Donald Rafferty said CSX's engineering requirements continue to change.

If the city ignores CSX's requirements, he said, the municipality is liable for millions in damages in the event of a catastrophe. "One derailment could wipe out an entire subdivision," cautioned Donald Rafferty.

While the rail company "is not being as cooperative as we wish," he said, "...I can't advise the city to violate the standards of the railroad."

City receives check

The city of Waveland finally received reimbursement for costs it bore in the demolition and cleanup of the burned out Azalea Bed and Breakfast on Nicholson Avenue. Although the structure burned several years ago, it was only demolished last year after being declared a nuisance. Recently, the property was sold, and the city was reimbursed $7,450 from the proceeds of that sale. Basil Kennedy, President of Union Planter's Bank in Bay St. Louis, (r) presented the check to Waveland Mayor John Mason at the city's workshop meeting Monday.

Landfill proposals on the table for consideration

BY ED LEPOMA

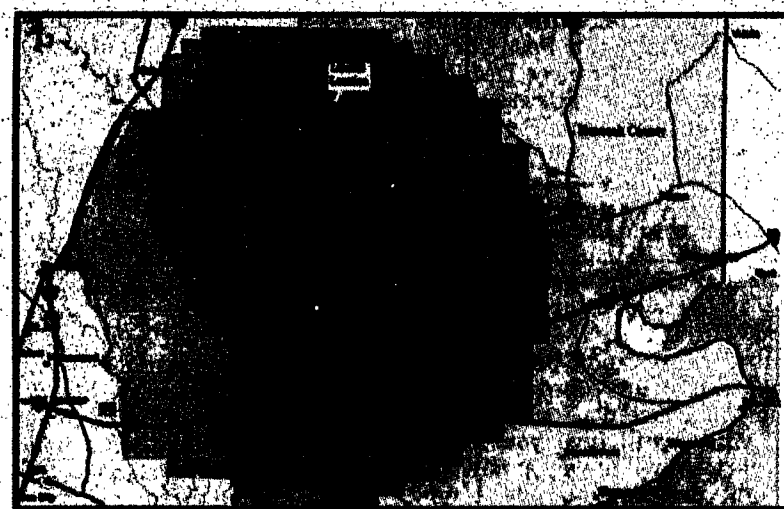

Two developers have proposed three sites in the buffer zone surrounding the Stennis Space Center for a combination sanitary landfill/rubbish site.

The Hancock County Regional Solid Waste Authority received proposals at a meeting on June 10, but invited developers to come back for oral presentations and to answer questions when the board meets again July 1.

The sites are dots on the map right now, but should the Authority agree to accept any of the proposals, public hearings would have to be held by the Department of Environmental Quality, then the Authority would hold another to amend its 20-year Solid Waste Plan to include the selected site in master plans.

The Echo has obtained copies of each proposal, and Hancock County resident Curtis Johnson is offering two sites. Hattiesburg developers, Bennett and Daughter, Paige York, are offering a 700-acre site accessible from state Hwy. 607 via Texas Flat Road and Flat Top Road.

Johnson, who lists himself as president of Magnolia Disposal Services, now has Hancock county's only permitted Class I rubbish site off Firetower Road in Kiln, but his proposal says he has "under firm option, excess of 2,000 acres in the buffer zone."

"All of the land is more than a mile within the NASA buffer zone, well elevated and meets all requirements of the Hancock Solid Waste Authority," according to Johnson.

Tract one is located north of Interstate 10, south of the NASA complex, off Hwy. 607, near the western boundary of Hancock County. Johnson explains this site is presently forest land, on high ground about 35 to 40 feet above sea level.

School systems present 1998-99 budgets

Hancock County proposes school budget June 22

BY B.R. HAWKINS

Hancock County School District will propose a $49,435,270 total operating budget for fiscal year 1999 at a public hearing Monday, June 22 at 6:30 p.m. at the district offices, 17304 Hwy. 603, Kiln.

Board members were given an overview of the proposed budget during a workshop held Monday, June 15 by District Business Officer Lynel Necaise and District Superintendent Terry Randolph.

The proposed budget is $7,538,087 over last year's budget of $41,897,182 and represents a 17.99 percent increase.

Randolph said the increases in revenue are due to state supplemental teacher raises and increases in the earned teacher units as well as additional ad valorem taxes from new property being added to the tax rolls.

Bay-Waveland school budget hearing scheduled June 24

BY B.R. HAWKINS

A public hearing has been scheduled for presentation of the Bay-Waveland School District annual budget Wednesday, June 24 at 6:30 p.m. in the school district offices, 201 Carroll Ave., Bay St. Louis.

The district will propose a $23,390,366 budget for the 1998-99 fiscal year. The budget is approximately $2.3 million over the FY 98 budget of $21,093,633.

"The increase in the budget is reflective of the action the board has taken in giving salary increases and debt service for bonds that are financing our construction program," said district superintendent, Dr. Mike Reed at a special meeting held Monday, June 15.

Reed indicated that the increase in funding will be made up from anticipated increases in ad valorem taxes on new property and in increased funds from casino revenues and not from any new taxes imposed on the district.

Thoughts for meditation:
 Help me be aware that today never returns. Give me a sense of stewardship of life that will make me want this day to count for you. Amen.

Pass commercial harbor rents raised

BY ED LEPOMA

After getting professional appraisals, the Pass Christian Board of Aldermen has voted unanimously to raise rents on the three businesses operating on the east side of the city's harbor.

The action was taken at a recess meeting Tuesday night after Mayor Billy McDonald explained how the new rates were calculated. In April, the city hired three independent appraisers, Everette Ladner, Sidney Cullifer and Doug Singletary, to look over the properties and recommend rental fees on a yearly basis.

McDonald said according to state law, the new yearly fees recommended were arrived out by averaging out the appraisals submitted by the three independent surveys.

The heaviest rent raise was 210 percent, assessed on Bruce Phelps, who has operated the Pass Bait Shop at the harbor for about 15 years. His yearly rent will go from $1,293 to $4,064.

Phelps was not available for comment at press time, but Jerry Forte, who operates a wholesale seafood factory at the harbor, said he is happy with his new rent.

Forte's rent went up 28 percent from the current $2,280 a year to $2,924.

Kimball's Seafood, operated by John Kimball, will absorb a 74 percent yearly rent increase. His new rent goes from $1,478 to $2,571 per year.

"CUEVAS' QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

I think it will be awhile before I want to eat red beans and rice. Monday's Cancer Society's benefit held at Casino Magic appeared to be a great success.

I know that Chuck (Red Bean) Breath, benefit general chairman, was all smiles as he saw the attendance of participants and general public.

Everything appeared to go well at the event, and the Casino Magic Entertainment Complex was and ideal place. There was plenty of room for the some 40 participants.

As far as I am concerned, all entrants were winners, and each and everyone needs to be thanked.

Top Bean Award by the judges went to Calgon Carbon, who was also the business winner; Hancock County Chamber of Commerce in organizations; City of Bay St. Louis in government services; and Trapani's Eatery in restaurants.

The People's winners were Gertrude Gardner in business; Hancock County Board of Supervisors in government services; and Trapani's Eatery in restaurants. The Best of Show Award went to Gertrude Gardner.

The sponsors were the American Cancer Society, Hancock Bank, Casino Magic and Camellia red beans.

I will be in trouble if I forget to mention the big help from the Hancock County Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP), and let us not forget the staff of Casino Magic.

Thanks to those who donated to the silent auction, as their contributions also helped make the fund raiser a success.

We will be looking forward to next year's Red Beans & Rice Cook-Off.

This is just to makes folks aware that there is the possibility that there may be a fireworks ban on shooting and sales in Hancock County for July 4th.

The ban will depend on how much moisture is received in the area between now and the July 4th weekend.

Hancock County Fire Marshal Richard Pate is very concerned, as Hancock County is in a dangerous situation because of a lack of rain.

So, if things get out of hand, there could be a ban for the sale and use of fireworks over the July 4th weekend in Hancock County.

If fireworks are allowed, Pate has several recommendations, such as "When you are shooting fireworks, you need to be shooting in a very safe area. Do not shoot fireworks towards houses, buildings, into the woods, or any area that has high grass".

We will keep you informed as the July 4th weekend nears.

On Saturday and Sunday there will be a giant garage sale at 8914 Kipapa Way, Diamondhead, to benefit Hope Haven.

The sale hours are 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., and there will be furniture, clothing and all types of household items on hand.

Terry Latham, executive director of Hope Haven is, in addition to folks stopping by for the sale, seeking other donations of items for the big sale.

He said that all contributions are 100% tax deductible, and limited pickup is available.

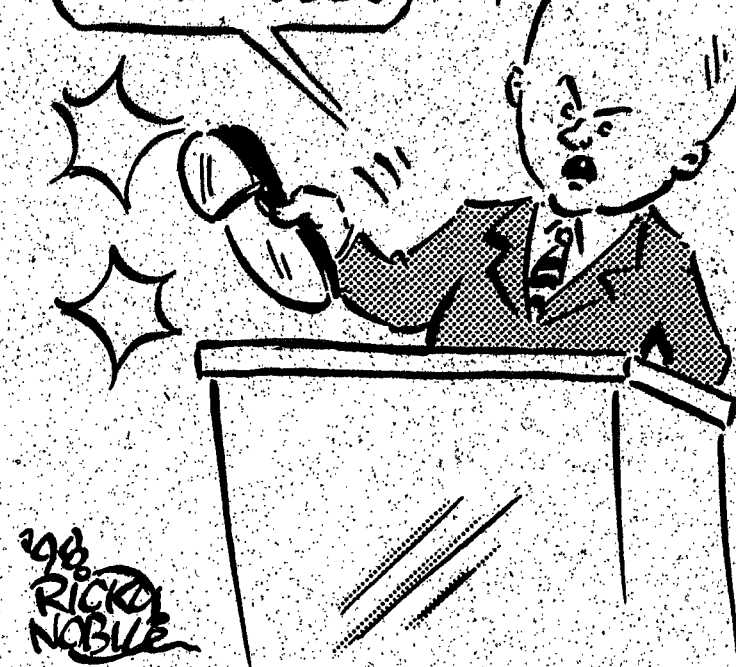

Persons wanting to make a contribution of items can call Latham during working hours at 467-7945 or evenings at 255-5341.

Your help is needed to make this a very successful fund raiser for Hope Haven.

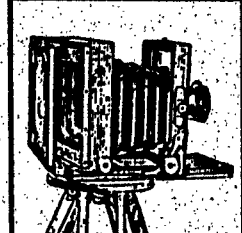

Diamondhead's Kipapa Way is the street directly behind Diamondhead Academy.

Sheriff Jos. V. Bontemps Receives Recognition For Protection of Prisoners - In recognition of his successful stand against a mob bent on lynching two of his prisoners, present Deputy Sheriff Jos. V. Bontemps, of Bay St. Louis, and former sheriff of Hancock County, was honored Monday morning by the presentation of a handsome bronze medal, awarded by a commission of distinguished Southerners, the presentation being made by the Hancock County Board of Supervisors at the regular monthly meeting. A few friends who had been told of the honor which was to be conferred upon Mr. Bontemps were present to congratulate him. The incident commemorated took place April 17 of last year when two negroes, Steve McKann and Will Coleman, accused of killing a white man, Andy Becker, on the road north of the Bay, were threatened by a mob numbering, it was said, 1200. Sheriff Bontemps sent in a hurried call for troops and meantime with 39 deputized stood off the mob with shotguns and pistols. The medal, a handsome bronze depicting a heroic figure standing guard before the temple of justice, was supplied by the Southern Commission on Interracial Co-operation. It was awarded by a committee composed of Gov. John W. Martin, of Florida; Hon. Hugh M. Dorsey, of Georgia; Mrs. J.H. McCoy, of Alabama; Marshall Ballard, editor of the New Orleans Item; and George B. Dealey, editor of the Dallas News, to who the facts were presented by the commission and who passed favorable upon the award. Both negroes in the case were sentenced to the penitentiary, Coleman for life and McKann for seven years. Coleman escaped two weeks after being taken to the penitentiary and has never been recaptured. Mr. Bontemps is delighted with the handsome medal and the honor accorded him in its presentation. He wears it as a fob on his watch.

A clinic for the removal of various tonsil and adenoid troubles of the children of Hancock County will be conducted Saturday by Dr. Cy Shipp, county health officer. About 15 children are expected to be present for this clinic. Dr. Shipp will be assisted in this work by women from the community clubs and the health chairmen in these clubs under the direction of Miss Mayme O'Dom, home demonstration agent, who will round up the children in the various communities whom previous examinations by Dr. Shipp show to be in need of corrections, and these women will also transport the children to the Bay for the operations. This work among those children of the county whose parents cannot afford to have the corrections done, is being made possible through the co-operation of the board of supervisors who are permitting Dr. Shipp to use the funds set aside for a county health nurse for this corrective work.

MS farmers benefit from space program

By David Waide, President, Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation

If you are like millions of Americans who have grown dependent on the ever increasing technological world, then perhaps the recent failure of a communications satellite hovering about 22,000 miles over the U.S. gave you a clear perspective of just how our daily lives are linked to space initiatives.

As president of the Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation, representing more than 200,000 farmers and rural families, know first hand how important America's space efforts are to the agricultural community and how important it is we continue to adequately fund and support the space program.

Simply put, our nation's space program helps farmers improve the effectiveness and efficiency of their farming operations, an improvement that benefits all who enjoy an abundant supply of safe and reasonably priced food and fiber.

For example, farmers receive a direct benefit from our country's military space initiative through the Department of Defense's Global Positioning System (GPS).

This constellation of 24 military satellites orbiting the Earth helps farmers increase production yields through a technique called "precision farming."

GPS, in partnership with other government and commercial remote-sensing satellites, allows farmers to pinpoint location and statistical data as to how they can best utilize their land.

GPS receivers help farmers find exact locations within their fields and then determine whether or not adjustments need to be made in levels of seeding, fertilization, irrigation or chemical application. The GPS system allows farmers to plan and carry out their farming with amazing precision.

With this space-driven technology, farmers can go to any part of their farm and apply fertilizer, herbicide or pesticide at a different rate than is applied on adjacent fields. This allows them to maximize crop yields while lowering production costs.

New traffic laws take effect July 1

Commissioner of Public Safety Jim Ingram has issued a warning to motorists that troopers will actively and strenuously enforce two new laws when they become effective July 1. One new law concerns teenagers who drink and drive. The second concerns the safety of young children.

The "Zero Tolerance Bill" reduces the blood alcohol content (BAC) for teenagers to just two one-hundredths percent. This new standard will apply to anyone under the age of 21. A teenager who drinks a little as one or two beers could be cited under the DUI laws of Mississippi.

Ingram said, "This will be the law... and it will be enforced by all troopers of the Mississippi Highway Patrol. All of us will be working together to protect the people of Mississippi."

Under the new law, even for a first offense, a teenager could lose his or her license for up to three months, pay a $250 fine, be compelled to attend an alcohol safety education program, and even be forced to attend a victim impact meeting. Second and third offenses bring even harsher penalties.

Ingram urged parents to begin now to stress the fact that the level of tolerance has dropped to zero.

Also taking effect July 1 is a law adopted by the 1998 Legislature which requires the use of seat belts by every child between the ages of four and eight, regardless of where they sit in an automobile.

The legislation also requires that children under four be protected by a child restraint device. Current law requires only children under four be in child restraint seats.

Traffic safety experts say as many as 355 children could be saved each year if they are protected by safety restraints and seat belts.

Ingram says the troopers will vigorously enforce this new law also.

DIAMONDHEAD MEMBERS

Re: Cronvich political ad of June 14, 1998

The meeting Mr. Cronvich referred to did take place. Beyond that there is no truth.

The meeting was called to plead with the board to resolve several defects in the election process that may have invalidated the election. The defects included a late notice to the membership, absence of a space for the POA required social security number, and proxy procedures that confused the membership. The board simply refused to follow its own rules.

The request was refused and we were told to go to Court if we didn't like it. We did. We obtained a Court order curing all the defects. Additionally, the Court ordered the POA to follow a procedure that insured the privacy of the proxy. The order would not allow Mr. Cronvich to examine the proxies and make notes, as he did at the members meeting last June.

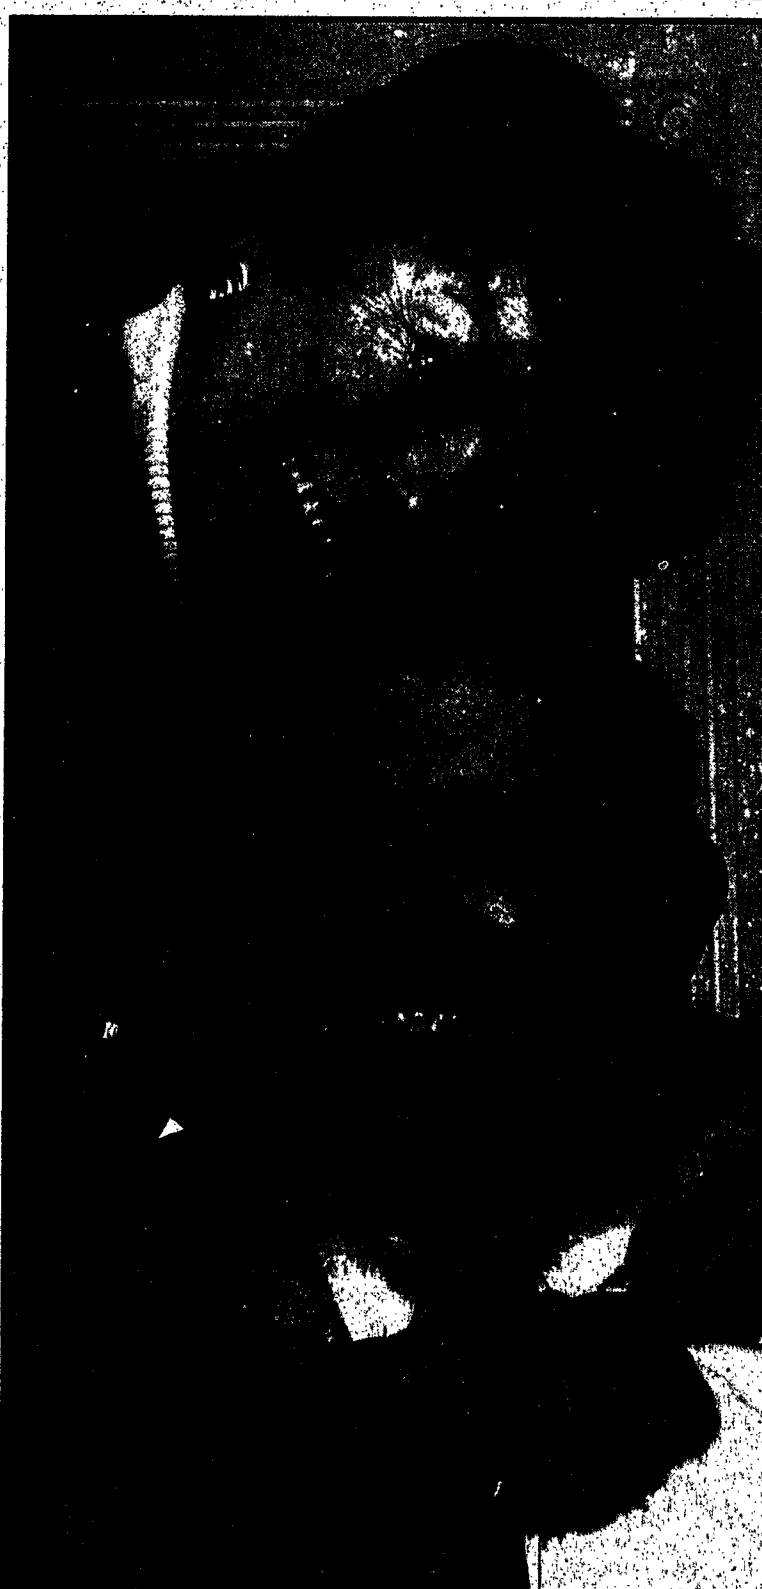

Again, Mr. Cronvich proved that he would rather litigate. The four (4) hours spent in Court was a waste of good time and your money.

At the meeting, Mr. Cronvich shouted at one of the invited guests "shut up or I will have you thrown out." An effort was made to restore calm to the meeting. All of the candidates and their representatives were in total harmony. This treatment of members by Mr. Cronvich has been witnessed by many at open board meetings.

We should be cautious of those who refuse to face the truth, the lazy that are content with half-truths, and the arrogant that think they know all truth.

NRL celebrates 75 years

Stennis one of two detachments

This year, 1998, the Naval Research Laboratory (NRL) in Washington, DC, celebrates 75 years of accomplishments in science and technology. The theme of this diamond anniversary reflects on the laboratory's achievements, and highlights current research and development activities that have had and continue to have a profound impact on the Navy and the nation.

NRL is the Navy's corporate research and development laboratory. NRL performs research extending scientific and technical knowledge necessary to support a modern Navy and leading to future naval materials, components and systems. The Laboratory, with a total complement of nearly 3,400 personnel, is located in southwest Washington, D.C., with detachments at Stennis Space Center and Monterey, Calif.

NRL was officially founded July 2, 1923, after the famous inventor Thomas Edison recommended that a "modern research facility of the Navy" be established.

In the following seven decades, research efforts have expanded from the two original areas of scientific endeavor, radio and underwater sound, to 19 broad areas that encompass many diverse fields.

Early research achievements include the discovery and explanation of radio skip distance (the foundation of modern wave propagation theory); the development of the fathometer and early sonar; and development of the first operational American radar, in time for use in World War II.

During World War II, scientific activities concentrated almost entirely on applied research. Ships' electronic countermeasures were devised, the first application of cryptography in radar identification was used, and the U.S.'s first Identification Friend or Foe radio system was developed at NRL.

The postwar era was a time of great expansion for NRL. The Laboratory significantly added to its prewar research program in radio, radar, underwater sound, chemistry, metallurgy, optics, nuclear science and cosmic rays.

NRL pioneered naval research into space from atmospheric probes with captured V-2 rockets through the direction of the Vanguard project — America's first satellite program, to such projects as the Navy's Global Positioning System and more recently the Clementine mission.

NRL produced the first satellite communication system by using the moon as a reflector and receiving the returned signals on the Earth's largest parabolic antenna; this was a first step toward artificial satellite communications. Since the last 1950's, Laboratory scientists have designed, built and launched more than 80 satellites.

NRL's Laboratory for the Structure of Matter is internationally famous for its pathbreaking work in using electron and x-ray diffraction methods for understanding the structure of complicated organic molecules. The Laboratory's Dr. Jerome Karle received the 1985 Nobel Prize in Chemistry for his work in this regard.

The Laboratory's current research program spans the scientific spectrum, including studies in topics as diverse as electronic warfare, infra-red countermeasures, fire suppression, information technology, radar technology, monitoring the solar corona and its impact on the Earth's atmosphere, biomolecular engineering, artificial intelligence, remote sensing, meteorological and oceanography.

The detachment at Stennis Space Center performs oceanographic scientific and technical analysis and research in areas such as corrosion/biofouling, ocean circulation modeling, geology and geophysics, underwater acoustics, digital mapping, wave interaction, computational physics and hydrographic surveying.

For information about current programs at NRL, visit the Laboratory's web site at <http://www.nrl.navy.mil>

Bay Fire Department tests equipment

Mike Willumitis, Bay St. Louis Fire Department training officer, supervised field pumping pressure tests June 8-9 of local fire engines and rescue vehicle, with the cooperation of Jerry Scaffidi, owner of the Kampgrounds of America, Hwy. 90.

The annual test, required by the Mississippi State Fire Rating Bureau, is performed to confirm that each vehicle is capable of pumping enough water to meet the city's Class 6 fire rating. The Class 6 rating was responsible for the significant reduction in residential property insurance rates that citizens have enjoyed for over a decade in Bay St. Louis. Based on current test results all vehicles, including the city's rescue unit, exceed state requirements.

"We are fortunate to have the cooperation of Mr. Scaffidi," said Willumitis, "he allowed us to use his small campground lake for this exercise. We lay our lines to pump water through the engines pump equipment at a variety of pressure settings, simulating the needs to fight various fires and meet our pressure capacity requirements."

"We perform these tests in relative isolation for civilian safety. Our firefighters must be capable of quick calculations of the pounds of pressure needed to suppress the fire emergency."

"Pressure management is the responsibility of the supervisor on the scene. These tests also give us the opportunity to train some of our other firefighters in a non-emergency situation."

Shift Supervisor Terry McCrory and firefighters Jeff Staggs, Rodney Auguzin and Clint Parker assisted in the test.

The rescue unit is used frequently to begin fire suppression on a scene until a larger truck arrives. It is capable of pumping 300 gallons of water per minute. This unit was recently used to suppress a car repair shop fire.

"The rescue unit was returning from an assistance call when the alarm was received. It could more quickly respond. The unit's team had everything under control and the fire out when the bigger engine arrived. This unit is one more element to providing cost effective and efficient service to our citizens," said Chief Robert Gavagnie.

BSL quilter helps work on UM quilt

Zoe Bowers of Bay St. Louis was among quilters from across Mississippi, the Mid-South and the nation to respond when Ole Miss asked for help in creating the quilt for the 150th anniversary. The "labor of love" will be formally unveiled June 27 in a ceremony honoring the participating quilters.

Held in the main hallway and board room of the historic Lyceum, the 2:30 p.m. event is free and open to the public.

"The quilt is absolutely breathtaking," said Dr. Gloria Kellum, executive director of the Sesquicentennial celebration. "Over the last 18 months while a committee was working on this unique project, I knew the finished product would be beautiful, but I was totally elated when I saw the finished creation. It is a stunning example of what happens when people work toward a dream, just as people worked to create this university."

The center of the quilt is graced with an appliqued rendition of the Sesquicentennial seal, which was completed by master quilter Nancy Welsch of Jackson in approximately 100 hours.

Other quilters pieced 12-inch-square blocks representing student life and academic programs on the university's Oxford and Jackson campuses. Traditional quilt patterns were selected because of their names and other connections to specific academic programs.

Mr. Weber, Mr. Doherty, several other Weber Candidates, Mr. Van Norman, Mr. Wade Stinson and... Mr. Peter Casano.

Mr. CASANO immediately identified himself as the SPOKESMAN FOR THE GROUP. Several times during the meeting members of Mr. Weber's ticket attempted to say something (Mr. Doherty was one) and Mr. Casano shut them up promptly.

IS THERE ANY QUESTION ABOUT WHAT IS GOING ON???

On the menu will be red beans, sausage, white or brown rice, coleslaw and bread. Iced tea will be available for those choosing to eat at the depot, and take-outs will be available.

Tickets are available at the Bay St. Louis and Waveland Police and Fire Departments, Hancock County Sheriff's Department and Hancock County Fire Marshall's Office, Carolyn Amacker at City Finance or any member of the Knights of Columbus.

"With no real physical boundaries between the cities on the Coast it is natural for citizens to band together in a time of need, this is one of those times. Officers Jim Northcutt and Steve Morgan were our peers and our friends," said Bay Chief Frank McNeil.

Waveland Chief James Varnell said, "That situation could have happened to us, and I know that Long Beach would be here to help us in every way they could. We can do no less and have tried to find ways to do more to help the city and the families of the two slain officers."

"We know how generous this community is, and we are counting on their support for this cause. I join Grand Knight Andrew T. Mitchell in challenging other Coast Knights and public safety agencies to help out in the same way," said Bay Mayor Eddie Favre.

United Way announces new executive director

United Way of South Mississippi announces Becky Montgomery has been selected to serve as the new executive director effective July 1.

Montgomery currently serves as commercial development manager for the Harrison County Development Commission.

Rick Stewart, district manager for BellSouth and chair of the United Way Search Committee, said the committee "went through a very thorough selection process" for several months to pick a new director from among 60 applicants.

"We looked at future needs and feel very pleased to have someone who has the demonstrated leadership skills we found in Becky," Stewart said.

"She has an extensive background in business and economic development, she knows the Coast, and has a strong history of commitment to non-profits through service on board of numerous organizations."

Tim Hinkley, vice president of United Way of South Mississippi, said, "She understands our recent growth and the opportunities it brings. Her strategic vision will only help strengthen United Way and the communities we serve."

Montgomery will succeed Aletha Burge who has led the agency since 1992. Burge will become director of agency relations, a new position that will work with agencies to encourage collaboration, accountability and efficiency.

Montgomery currently serves on the Pass Christian School Board, Harrison County Strategic Planning Initiative, Leadership Gulf Coast Board of Directors, and as president of the Gulfport Rotary.

As a member of the National Guard she serves as director of personnel and community activities for the National Guard Training site at Camp Shelby.

She said, "I am excited about a new opportunity. I see this as another way to serve our community by focusing on the social services and the overall quality of life."

United Way of South Mississippi serves Harrison, Hancock and Pearl River counties, distributing more than $1 million to member agencies in the three-county area.

Feud — Animal activist joins in

Hoffman cited dozens of cases across the country in which carriage horses have died — as well as passengers — in various incidents. "A greater potential for collisions with motor vehicles now exists because of increased traffic on the Coast. Slow moving horse-drawn carriages can and do cause jams and slowdowns," she told council. "The horse does not fight. When it is startled, it may bolt. A horse can be frightened by something so innocuous as a balloon popping, a car horn, flashbulbs, sirens, even blowing debris. A horse pulling an open, fragile carriage with no seat belts, can become heavy machinery out of control," Hoffman said.

Hoffman's presentation included a letter from the 7,000-member Mississippi Animal Rescue League. Both organizations cite the danger that horses face in the extreme heat and humidity of the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

"The heat index on concrete and asphalt is much, much greater than in your back yards. Hours and hours of exposure can prove too much to bear for many of these animals. There is no more heartbreaking sight than one of these beautiful creatures down and gasping for air due to heat stroke," wrote Debra Boswell, director of the Mississippi Animal Rescue League.

Council members had heard the complaint of citizens concerning Murphy's horses in April, and, under a city statute, gave Murphy 30 days to remove his horses. He termed the order "ridiculous" and went to court, saying the city ordinance at issue is unconstitutional.

The city has counter-sued, saying the horses are a public nuisance and a health menace, as they are housed on a Union Street lot near residences. City counsel Donald Rafferty said the city takes issue with the idea that a temporary restraining order ever should have been issued against Bay St. Louis in the matter.

"I don't believe that the requirements for a preliminary injunction were met," he said. Those requirements include a finding that immediate and irreparable harm will be done to the plaintiff without a restraining order, and that the plaintiff, more than likely, will win the case in a full hearing.

The lawsuit came as no surprise, but constitutes a significant challenge to the city's powers to control animals within the corporate limits.

Rafferty said the judge who heard the case last week reserved the power to lift his restraining order, if the city comes forth with proof that the horse stable poses a health threat. Rafferty said as soon as the city compiles evidence to that effect, "we'll go back immediately" to seek power to force the horses' removal from Union Street.

Meanwhile, the issue of whether horse-drawn carriages should be allowed in the city remained on council's table without action.

Bay-Waveland

Board members expressed concern over a proposed expenditure of some $264,370 in designated areas at each school.

"I want to make sure that the items designated on this list reflect the principal's priority in how they want to spend this money at their schools," said Bryon Griffith of Waveland. "If this listing is tied to the five-year plan or came to us from the principals and teachers at the schools, then I am very comfortable with it. But if this listing is something arbitrarily decided by the district office then I am less comfortable with it."

The list presented to the board showed a total of $264,370 from casino revenues earmarked in specific expenditures for each school.

Griffith used Bay High School allocation as an example. According to the proposed budget request, the high school would receive $2,450 with $2,000 earmarked for supplies and equipment; $2,000 for Family and Consumer Science; $2,000 for the dance team; $2,000 for administrative travel required by new programs; $10,000 for blinds; $450 for trash cans and $4,000 for the Tech Prep program budget.

Reed assured board members that the list was reflective of the principals' and the teachers' requests and that each category was a priority with the school.

"The principals have always been allowed to move money as they needed from one category to another," said Garland Cuevas, district business manager. "If they need, the principals have flexibility within this allocation."

In other matters, the board approved an amendment to the Extended School Year Program that would allow the district to employ the services of an orientation and mobility specialist to work through the summer with a blind student, his family and his one-on-one helper.

"This student is in critical need of help this summer in order to continue his growth and confidence in getting around now that his sight has grown weaker," said Director of Special Education, Dr. Sherry Ponder.

Also, the board accepted a bid from Hancock Bank for the allocation of the Mississippi Adequate Education Program funds. Trustmark Bank was the only other bidder.

Hancock — Budget

spending comes from an additional $14.5 million budgeted for construction and approximately a 44 percent increase in debt services over last year," Randolph said.

Construction projects include new elementary school, a new middle school, a media center at Charles B. Murphy Elementary School, a cafeteria and four classrooms at Gulfview and extensive renovations at Hancock Elementary School. In other matters, the board voted to purchase four module classroom units for Harrison County in lieu of leasing Diamondhead Academy for additional classrooms at Hancock Elementary School, Hwy. 603. The units will be used to alleviate potential overcrowding at the elementary school. Enrollment last year was 1,607, and projections show that officials are anticipating an enrollment increase at a minimum of 100 new students.

The big difference between the rich and the not-so-rich

** The Associated Press (c). All rights reserved. **

BY JOHN CUNIFF AP BUSINESS ANALYST

Perhaps the most significant difference between the rich and the poor is that the rich are likely to avoid interest charges on their credit-card bills while the poor might not be able to do so.

Government statistics suggest this, and now the 12th annual Survey of Affluent Americans tends to confirm it. It says that nearly 80 percent of the top 1 percent of the wealthiest Americans pay the entire balance each month.

So, yes, the rich are different from you and me. F. Scott Fitzgerald might have alluded to this in his fiction, but investment adviser U.S. Trust has confirmed it in 20-minute telephone interviews with 202 rich folk.

The news isn't exactly new. In the Federal Reserve's Survey of Consumer Finances you'll find similar data, such as that debt among the top 5 percent of earners has fallen in the 1990s, but risen among the lower 80 percent.

It is also there in the rising figures for credit-card delinquencies and personal bankruptcies, and that eliminates the very, very rich, almost by definition. You're less likely to be a top earner and bankrupt simultaneously.

The wealthiest 1 percent of earners, according to U.S. Trust, which has been advising the rich for 140 years, consists of those with an adjusted gross income of at least $200,000 a year or net worth exceeding $3 million.

In many ways they are just like the rest of Americans. They would consider borrowing to buy a home or car or to pay for their children's education. But they balk at borrowing for special vacations and luxury purchases.

They put the same high premium on having enough money to be financially secure, although it must be conceded that their interpretation of "enough" might differ from the average American's. More than 90 percent cited security as a vital financial goal.

There is something quite common about their interest in "saving as much money as possible," cited as a very important goal by 53 percent of rich women and 40 percent of rich men. The big difference is that they can do it.

And the rich, like you and me, worry. They worry that they'll have to support grown children (44 percent), that they can't maintain their income level (54 percent) and that their kids will have it tougher (78 percent).

All this suggests it isn't easy living as a rich person, and that in fact you might have special worries once you achieve affluence. Worries that taxes will rise steeply, for instance. More than 60 percent worry about that.

The very rich are also burdened by the necessity of relying to some extent on investment advisers. More than 95 percent use advisers, and that can entail additional worries about such things as trustworthiness.

Prior surveys in the series focused on such concerns as retirement planning, the baby boomers, estate planning and how the affluent achieved their economic status. This survey compared attitudes of men and women.

It found differences, of course. An example: Sixty-five percent of affluent women cited husbands as a very important source of financial advice; only 26 percent of men accorded the same level of confidence to their wives.

Forklift maker expands Long Beach operations

Chrisman Manufacturing Inc. in Long Beach will more than double the size of its plant on Beatline Road. The expansion is expected to be completed by July 1.

The company builds "Navigator" truck-mounted forklifts. The machines come in 4,000 lb. and 5,000 lb. capacities and are unique because they are light weight, have all-terrain capabilities and are carried to the jobsite mounted behind a flatbed truck. The "Navigator" is one of only a handful of truck-mounted forklifts made in America.

Since the company began 10 years ago, it has grown from two to more than 20 employees and plans to increase production by 50 percent this year. Mark Chrisman, founder of Chrisman

Manufacturing, said a major increase in product demand is the reason for the expansion.

"Last year we built 87 machines. We anticipated building at least 130 this year," Chrisman said. "Sod producers were our main customers when we started, but the business has evolved to include building supplies, concrete forms, scaffolding and just about anything else carried on a flatbed truck."

Although "Navigator" is made exclusively at the Long Beach facility using local parts and labor, it is in use by companies throughout Mississippi and the United States.

For information on Chrisman Manufacturing products and services, call 1-800-342-2051 or 228-864-7244.

Drainage — Progress slowed

He made the comments as council was considering change orders to their construction contract. The changes were caused, in part, by CSX requirements, Rafferty said.

In another matter, council approved a variance for construction of a home at 800 South Beach Boulevard, after the pros and cons of the application were aired for the fourth time in recent weeks. Ronald Robert was given permission to build his home with five-foot lot line variances on each side yard and the rear lot line.

One neighbor, Steve Morehouse, has objected strenuously to the plan, and is threatening a lawsuit to block the construction. City officials allowed Morehouse to restate his objections Tuesday, but said Morehouse's disagreement with Robert is a legal confrontation over a private easement that is not in council's realm of authority.

Robert, meanwhile, issued assurances anew that he's taking extraordinary steps to see that the construction doesn't harm large live oaks on the property.

Other significant zoning matters aired Tuesday included proposed rezoning from residential to commercial, of the former McDonald Lumber Yard building at 299 Second St., next to Bay Catholic Elementary. Plans restore the historic building had been greeted with enthusiasm at a recent Planning and Zoning Commission meeting. But rezoning the building to commercial usage were opposed by the school and Catholic parish officials, since commercial zoning would allow a wide array of usages incompatible with the school.

Council agreed to deny the rezoning application.

Council also agreed with the commission's recommendation to reject an application for a special exception that would allow operation of a snowball stand at the corner of Union Street and the Old Spanish Trail. Area residents had balked at the proposed enterprise, saying it would increase traffic in a residential area.

One major rezoning matter was on council's agenda, but required no action since the application has been withdrawn. Officials say the proposed use of some 28 acres of St. Augustine Seminary property on Highway 90 doesn't require a zoning change from residential to commercial.

The Society of Divine Word Seminary had asked for a C-3 designation, to allow construction of an extended care, retirement community and small urgent care center.

But commissioners urged the property owners to seek a "special exception" allowing the construction, rather than a rezoning, indicating such a move has a much better chance of final approval.

Later in the meeting, Mayor Eddie Favre named Joe Ziegler to a seat on the Planning and Zoning Commission. He will fill the seat left vacant when the term of Melany Mitchell expired.

In other business Tuesday, council members grumbled dissatisfaction with the news that MediaCom plans to extend its operating franchise with the city for five years. That option is entirely up to the company, which supplies local cable television service.

Several council members expressed displeasure with the company's service, saying it has worsened in recent weeks and spawned numerous complaints from constituents. "If we take action, I'm voting No," said Council president Tad Black. But city attorney John Scafide said council doesn't have the authority to approve or disapprove the franchise extension.

On a more positive note, council learned that the state Public Service Commission has given the city's gas system a clean bill of health, for the first time in decades. "This is the first time in city history we've had absolutely a clean report," said Favre.

Council member James Thrifflay said the city's loss of gas from the system ran as high as 26 percent in 1977, costing the public over $100,000 in escaped gas. The loss rate now is a negligible one-tenth of one percent.

Council agreed to send congratulatory letters to the city utility department and Public Works Director Ron Vanney.

In other matters Tuesday, council:

—Set a special workshop for 7 p.m. June 23, to continue discussion of the city's Comprehensive Plan.

—Agreed to endorse the mission statement of the Department of Marine Resources comprehensive resource management planning project for the Gulf Coast. DMR officials had briefed council Monday on the program, saying it was launched out of concern for the environment and coastal resources, in the face of the economic boom brought on by the casino industry.

—Agreed to re-consider the way the city allocates "donations" to area organizations, including advertisements the city sponsors in event programs. As it stands, some organizations approach the city and the county repeatedly during the year, asking for money.

Landfill — Proposals made

The second site offered by Johnson is located on the Kiln-DeLisle Road near the intersection of Cuevas Town Road. Johnson said this tract is presently pasture and forest land and is also on high ground, at about 80 to 100 feet above sea level.

Complete geology and environmental information is unavailable at this time. But, Johnson promised, "Applicant will complete the necessary testing in the near future and will furnish the Hancock County Solid Waste Authority with copies of the reports to insure acceptability of the proposed site(s)."

As an incentive to the Authority, Johnson proposes to:

- Acquire the land comprising the sanitary waste disposal site;
- Pay the cost of obtaining the necessary permits from federal and state agencies;
- Pay for the construction of the landfill and all equipment needed to bring the site into full operation;
- Maintain a staff and all the necessary machinery for the operation of the facility;
- And, assume all environmental liability for the closure and post-closure of the landfill;

He proposes letting Hancock County dump household garbage free of charge over the next 50 years, as long as the county dumping doesn't exceed the current 1,100 tons per month. After that, Johnson proposes a sliding scale of charges based on the total tonnage.

The Yorks, doing business as Mississippi Waste of Hancock County, already operate landfills in Mississippi, doing business as Trash Hunters, Inc., of Mississippi. They operate landfills in Durant, a solid waste transfer station in Hinds County, which it owns and operates to serve metropolitan Jackson and a landfill in Tunica.

The Yorks contend their proposal "would provide the ci-zens of Hancock County with a long-term, economically advantageous and environmentally sound solution to its non-hazardous solid waste disposal needs."

"The Yorks have an option from PruTimber for a 700-acre site within the buffer zone. It is located over three miles from the northern boundary of the buffer zone and accessible from Hwy. 607 via Texas Flat Road and Flat Top Road. "The proposed landfill location is the southern and western-most portion of the uplands...These uplands are desirable for the landfill location because they minimize wetlands permitting restrictions, take advantage of favorable geology, and provide topographic relief to provide good drainage designs for the landfill," according to the Yorks.

The Yorks said, "Based on a preliminary siting study...this site meets or exceeds the siting criteria by the Mississippi Department of Environmental Quality for the operation of a Solid Waste Management Facility."

Under the York proposal, the service area served by the landfill would be within a 150-mile radius of Hancock County. In Phase One, the Yorks would build a 70-acre landfill and a 40-acre rubbish site. And in Phase Two, a 190-acre landfill is proposed. (One cell of the average landfill takes up about 10 acres).

The Yorks propose a contract term of 20 years, with a 10-year extension and a sliding scale for dumping household garbage.

Estimates are Hancock County dumps approximately 1,100 tons of household garbage per month, which is equal to 13,200 tons per year.

Under the York proposal, Mississippi Waste would offer free disposal of 10,000 tons per year generated from Hancock County, but that rate has already been exceeded by the present track record. After 10,000 tons per year, the Yorks propose to charge $14.95 per ton, and that charge would be adjusted annually based on the Consumer Price Index.

Contacted in Hattiesburg, Paige York said their proposal was based on advance figures given to them by engineering consultants, and they were led to believe the county was generating less than 10,000 tons per year. "That figure (the amount allowed free of charge) can be adjusted to accommodate the present yearly quota," she said.

The Yorks also would allow all Hancock County residents to dump free of charge any rubbish, (i.e. concrete, tree limbs, etc.) generated in the county "up to a maximum quantity per year to be agreed upon."

In their proposal, the Yorks also say Mississippi Waste will "site, permit, construct, own and operate" a landfill and rubbish site for Hancock County.

8th annual red beans & rice best yet!

Cook-Off benefits Cancer Society

The numbers are still coming in, but by all accounts the American Cancer Society's 8th Annual Red Beans and Rice Cook-Off Monday, was a great success.

The event, held at Casino Magic, attracted more than 500 walk-ins to sample a variety of red beans and rice dishes from among 30 team participants. All proceeds raised from team entries, a silent auction and door ticket sales (including proceeds from pre-sold tickets) benefitted the American Cancer Society.

The judges' awards were divided into four categories: Businesses, Organizations, Government Services and Restaurants. The winner in Businesses Category, Calgon Carbon; in Organizations, Hancock County Chamber of Commerce; in Government Services, City of Bay St. Louis; and in Restaurants Trapani's Eatery. The Top Bean Award went to Calgon Carbon.

The People's Choice winners were in Businesses, Gertrude

Gardner, in Government Services, Hancock County Board of Supervisors; and in Restaurants, Trapani's Eatery. The Best of Show Award went to Gertrude Gardner.

The American Cancer Society is the largest source of private, not-for-profit cancer research funds in the U.S., second only to the federal government in total dollars spent. To date, the Society has invested more than $2 billion in cancer research. The Coast's local chapter provides information on cancer, comprehensive school health education programs on breast cancer awareness and tobacco control.

Headlining this year's event was Joe Cahn, founder of the New Orleans School of Cooking.

The Red Beans & Rice Cook-Off was sponsored in part by Casino Magic, The American Heart Association, Hancock Bank, and Camellia Beans.

2B-THE SEA COAST ECHO-THURSDAY, JUNE 18, 1998

Angelette wins Cajun Sprint at Sun Coast

The Cajun Sprint feature race gave fans several wild flips adding to the action in the 23-car field of race cars. Michael Dupuy and Mac Kelly headed the lineup as they came to the green flag for the start of the feature.

Dupuy moved to the front and managed to build a comfortable lead, but as lap traffic figured into the action, Kelly Angelette was able to make a pass on Dupuy for the lead. Dupuy was able to challenge on a couple of restarts, but could not regain the lead.

Lane Whittington, winner of the last visit to Sun Coast, worked his way toward the front, but a flip coming out of turn four slowed his charge. Whittington was able to hold on for a fourth place finish behind Butch David and second place finisher Dupuy. Mac Kelly, Whittington and Gary Farmer won earlier heat races.

Twelve Late Models made the starting lineup for the first feature race under the newly adopted tire rule for this class. It appeared to have little or no effect on the pecking order of this division.

Rickey Hankins, who has been the man to beat in this class since taking up residence at Sun Coast, and K. I. Davis the only driver to accomplish this feat so far, were still a two-car breakaway for the most part of the race.

Michael Aycock, one of several drivers who came down to tune up for next week's Rick's Furniture series race, went flag to flag in the third spot. Eddie Rickman also testing a new race car in preparation for next Saturday's feature event finished fourth over heat race winner Billy Joe Schonewitz.

Roger Lacoste picked up his second feature win of the season as he led a 17-car field of Street Stocks for a green to checkers feature win. Rodney Barber held off Noah Daspit and Bubba Trotter to finish in the second spot. Bobby Terwilliger rounded out the top five, making one of his best showings of the season. Ron Maxie and Phil Howard were both earlier heat race winners.

Rodney Bruce took advantage of a front row starting position to move to the front of the Pro Stock feature where he lead every lap of a caution filled race.

Gary Joiner appeared to develop steering problems as he crossed up in turn two in the early going ending his racing for the night. Chet Morrison was also plagued with mechanical problems along with Larry Cifra. Cifra held the second spot before he and Bubba McQueen got together causing Cifra to spin out of contention. Ronnie Roberts moved into the third spot over Billy Joe Schonewitz and heat winner Randy Deshamp.

Brant Terillo had a perfect night as he won a heat and the feature in the IMCA class. This race also had numerous cautions in a large field of cars and a dry slick track.

Terillo was able to lead every lap but was challenged on several occasions before claiming the win. Chuckie Smith, nationally ranked in this class, was able to work his way through traffic to finish in the second spot. Gary Rever held off Kalif Sellier and Stanley Fletcher for a third place finish. Greg Thurman was also a heat race winner.

Fifteen-year-old rookie sensation Jason Beauchamp added feature number five, along with a heat race win to his credits. Jamie Moran and Randy Eaton Jr. chased Beauchamp to the finish line in feature race action.

Next week's feature attraction will be a Late Model show from the Rick's Furniture series. A large field of top cars and drivers will be on hand as they race for points and cash. A regular program of races will also be on the schedule of events.

County campers

Sea Wolves re-sign Rupnow

The Mississippi Sea Wolves professional hockey team announces the re-signing of Centerman Mark Rupnow.

Rupnow, a rugged face-off specialist, has re-signed through the 1998-99 season. This past season Rupnow rebounded from knee surgery and played 66 of 70 games for the Sea Wolves and posted 23 goals and 21 assists for 44 points and had 59 penalty minutes.

He finished seventh in team scoring and tied third on the club in goals. He also tied for second with five game winning goals.

Head Coach Bruce Boudreau commented, "Mark was instrumental in making the Sea Wolves one of the best penalty killing clubs in this league. He has made improvements in his game the last two seasons and we look for him to take on a more important role next year. Mark is a big, grinding centerman with the potential to score 30 goals. He epitomizes the work ethic we want to instill in the team next season.

The Sea Wolves open the 1998-99 campaign with six straight games at home, starting with Mobile.

Fishing rodeo celebrates 50 years

A Mississippi Gulf Coast tradition and the world's largest event of its kind, the Mississippi Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo celebrates its golden anniversary July 1-5. The Rice Pavilion in Gulfport serves as on-shore headquarters.

"Everyone of all ages is invited to join us for this 50th Fishing Rodeo, the best ever for fishermen, non-fishermen and families," said Chuck Dedeaux, who's serving his second stint as the event's chairman.

The area around Rice Pavilion will be alive with carnival rides and family fun while musical entertainment, food and display booths will be featured under the Pavilion.

According to Dedeaux, approximately $30,000 worth of fishing prizes will also be on display.

The real stars of the five-day fishing extravaganza are sure to be the fish bountifully given up from rich coastal waters to anglers who have brought, along with their gear, their dreams of catching record-setting fish like the 600-pound grouper which set a new state record in 1997.

The rodeo weighmaster will stand ready with official scales as entrants return with stinkfish, sharks, catfish, trout, grouper, black and red drum, snapper, flounder, bass, cobia, mackerel, amberjack and others from the hundreds of fresh and saltwater species found in nearby waters.

Spectators are invited to see the daily-changing displays of winning fish and try their skill at identifying the different kinds.

The rodeo queen and her court, chosen from local high school students, will be on hand to greet visitors and fishermen.

In keeping with the holiday weekend, a fireworks display will illuminate the sky over the Mississippi Sound between 8 and 9 p.m. July 4.

"This event is another great reason for visitors to come see what this area, the country's fastest growing vacation destination and the Playground of the South, has to offer," said Stephen B. Richer, executive director of the Convention & Visitors Bureau.

Begun in 1948 by a group of citizens interested in promoting

Gulf Coast fishing, the Mississippi Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo is managed by a volunteer board of directors who work all year to make the fishing spectacular a success. A commemorative 50th Anniversary program will be printed and distributed.

There is no entry fee for fishermen. Admission to the Rice Pavilion is $2 per person. Rodeo officials may be contacted at P. O. Box 1289, Gulfport, MS 39502 or at 228-863-2713.

4B-THE SEA COAST ECHO--THURSDAY, JUNE 18, 1998

Seniors work

Seniors carefully work on Pit 2 under the supervision of Callie Hall, research assistant to Marco Giardino, PhD of NASA.

Archaeological dig gives students practical experience

Hands-on education has a practical meaning when NAVOCEANO personnel did field work May 6-8 with the seniors from St. Stanislaus in conjunction with the school's archaeological dig, the Sesqui Project.

The NAVOCEANO personnel are true partners in education and have been involved with the Sesqui Project since the first dig in 1994.

The 1998 NAVOCEANO volunteers involved with the project were Marc Beddoe, Eddie Cranford, Robert Graves, Al Jensen, Bruce Laybourne, Mike Kueminski, Pam Luke, Mary Pyles and Doug Watts.

Callie Hall, a co-op student with NASA, also assisted with this year's work. Marco Giardino, PhD with NASA, and Al Genin, a St. Stanislaus graduate from the Class of 1960, have been the scientific guides and constant monitors of the project.

This year three pits were opened next to the Brothers Cemetery in back of St. Stanislaus. The pit area is the same site of a simple wooden school house open from 1870 to 1969 for grade school boys.

Revealing interesting profiles and artifacts, two of the three pits from 1997 were reopened in 1998. The seniors reopened these pits to the depth of the floor reached during last year's dig, and then the serious excavation began.

Pit 2, tended by Al Jensen, had the excitement for this year's dig: a significant trash pit of the Back School. Recovered were bits of earthenware, bottles and school contraptions.

In Pit 3 the students found harness pieces and related hardware of a stable.

Giardino admitted some disappointment that this year's work did not progress past the historical evidence of the school. He continues to postulate that this site of high ground would have been favorable for Indian habitation having fresh water and natural protection relatively close.

PRCC sets freshman orientation

Officials at Pearl River Community College have announced the dates for its 1998 summer orientation session for new students.

Approximately 1,000 new students and their parents attended PRCC's orientation sessions last summer.

Students living in Hancock, Jefferson Davis and Marion counties are scheduled Monday, July 6.

The winners from these recitals were presented in a final recital, Mahler tied for first place in Strings Division D for ninth and 10th grade.

In October she was named first place winner in the 1997 MMTA Pre-College Junior Concerto Competition in Strings at Delta State University in Cleveland, Miss.

She served as assistant concertmaster of the 1997 American Honor Philharmonic Orchestra which performed at USM in November.

NASA INVITES COMMENT ON THE PROPOSED CLEAN UP PLANS FOR TWO AREAS AT THE JOHN C. STENNIS SPACE CENTER

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) has completed its evaluation of two clean up areas at the John C. Stennis Space Center in Hancock County, Mississippi. The public is invited to comment on the "Proposed Plans" for clean up of contaminated sediment and groundwater in Area B and groundwater in Area D. The Proposed Plan for each area and the reports on which they are based are available for review at the:

Hancock County Library
312 Hwy 90
Bay St. Louis, MS 39520
(228) 467-5282

NASA's Environmental Officer, Mr. Ronald G. Magee, should be contacted at the address and phone number below for additional information or to review the Administrative Record upon which the proposed clean ups are based.

ALTERNATIVE CLEAN UP ACTIONS EXAMINED FOR AREA B

Sediment Alternatives

- Alternative SD-1: No Action -- Undertake no clean up.
- Alternative SD-2: Excavation and Disposal of Sediment - Remove contaminated sediment from a drainage ditch and dispose of sediment at approved facilities and backfill to the original grade.

Groundwater Alternatives

- Alternative GW-1: No Remedial Action for Groundwater - Undertake no clean up.
- Alternative GW-3: Pumping and Treatment - Extract contaminated groundwater, destroy the contaminants using ultra-violet (UV) oxidation, and discharge the treated water.
- Alternative GW-5: Passive Treatment Wall - Contaminants in groundwater are degraded when passing through a proprietary treatment wall containing reactive metal installed in the ground at selected site locations.
- Alternative GW-6: Pumping and Treatment and Natural Attenuation -- Extract and treat groundwater until the contaminant concentrations level off and pumping is no longer effective in extracting contaminants. Natural degradation would further degrade the remaining contaminants to acceptable levels.

Note: Two alternatives, GW-2 and GW-4, were eliminated during the initial screening process.

ALTERNATIVE CLEAN UP ACTIONS EXAMINED FOR AREA D

- Alternative 1: No Remedial Action for Groundwater-- Undertake no clean up.
- Alternative 2: Pumping and Treatment - Extract contaminated groundwater, remove contaminants using carbon adsorption, and discharge the treated water. Additionally, the depressions at the bottom of the hillside that pool water will be filled in.
- Alternative 3: In-situ Biological Treatment - Naturally growing microorganisms are stimulated to degrade organic contaminants dissolved in groundwater, resulting in the break down of contaminants. Additionally, the depressions at the bottom of the hillside that pool water will be filled in.
- Alternative 4: In-situ Chemical Treatment - Contaminants in groundwater are degraded when passing through a proprietary treatment wall containing reactive metal installed in the ground at selected site locations. Additionally, the depressions at the bottom of the hillside that pool water will be filled in.

NASA has identified Alternatives SD-2 and GW-6 as the preferred alternatives for Area B, and Alternative 2 as the preferred alternative for Area D.

YOU ARE INVITED TO A PUBLIC INFORMATION SESSION ON THE PROPOSED PLANS

Hancock County Library
312 Highway 90, Bay St. Louis, MS 39520

YOUR COMMENTS ON THESE PROPOSED PLANS ARE IMPORTANT TO NASA

Written comments on the Proposed Plans will be accepted from June 18, 1998 to July 18, 1998. Please send your comments to:

New show to open at Casino Magic Biloxi

A "magical combination" of comedy, music and magic will make its debut at Casino Magic Biloxi's Eclipse Showroom beginning Friday.

Hocus Pocus is the latest creation of Las Vegas producer Billy DeVille, who brought shows like American Superstars to the Grand and Palace Casinos.

For this show, DeVille will introduce the Gulf Coast to two new superstars, a pair of magicians who will headline the hour-long revue — Aaron Radatz and Jade.

Aaron Radatz has been called "the next David Copperfield" for his amazing full stage illusions. A Detroit native who got his start as a grade school magician, Radatz has worked with some of America's greatest magicians, the late Harry Blackstone Jr., David Copperfield and Lance Burton.

Jade comes to the Gulf Coast from an exclusive four-month engagement at Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas. In 1990, Jade won the coveted Golf Medal at the International Brotherhood of Magicians' competition.

Today, she is still the first and only woman to receive the coveted award. Since then, Jade has performed all over North America and Europe, including a special performance for the Royal Family of Monaco. A native of Indonesia, Jade's love of magic began at The World of Unexplained Magic, a popular shop in San Francisco's Fisherman's Wharf district.

In addition to Radatz and Jade, Hocus Pocus features the comedy and singing of Dino Marshall and dancers Stephanie Shugart, Amy Sandefur and Joleen Sanders.

Hocus Pocus will offer shows Tuesday-Sunday. Show times are: Tues.-Thurs., 8 p.m.; Fri., 8 and 10 p.m.; Sat., 2, 8 and 10 p.m.; Sunday, 2 and 8 p.m. Tickets are $9.95 each and can be purchased in the Casino Magic Biloxi Gift Shop, or members of the Magic Money Players Club can redeem 50 points. Hotel guests will receive a complimentary ticket during their stay.

For information or reservations for Casino Magic Biloxi's new 378-room luxury hotel, call 1-800-5-MAGIC-5.

Mickey Finn brings show to Treasure Bay

The one and only Fred "Mickey" Finn brings his popular nostalgia show to Treasure Bay Casino June 30-July 12. Shows are free Tuesday through Sunday, June 30-July 5 and July 7-12) from 8 p.m.-midnight at Scalawag's Showbar.

Finn became popular worldwide after opening his own Dixieland/roaring '20s night club in San Diego when he was only 21 years old. Mickey Finn's became the most successful spot of its type in the country for 14 years.

The novelty of his act became the basis for his own TV program, "The Mickey Finn how," which aired as a summer series on NBC network.

The same summer, Finn made his debut in the main showroom at Caesars Palace. His act made history as the longest running Dixieland comedy show in the history of Las Vegas from 1967-1991.

Finn has performed in the most prestigious casino showrooms in the nation and has made 40 national TV appearances. He has also appeared on Russian national TV and toured worldwide from Saudi Arabia and Lithuania to Czechoslovakia and Australia.

His achievements include producing, directing and performing shows for Presidents

Nixon and Reagan. The San Francisco native started playing piano at the age of seven as therapy for a mangled finger. Since then, he has performed at every type of venue imaginable — from Disneyland and Knott's Berry Farm to state fairs, universities, dinner theaters and cruise ships.

With the help of his costumed cast, Mickey Finn is known for putting on crowd-pleasing shows that bring music of the past to today's audiences.
